The Music Man

Carlsbad Community Theatre

Hairspray

THE SHOW:

Music by Marc Shaiman, Lyrics by Scott Wittman and Marc Shaiman, and a book by Mark O'Donnell and Thomas Meehan. Based on the 1988 John Waters film "Hairspray."

Big hair, big dreams, and big belly laughs collide in Hairspray – an outrageously funny and at times powerful musical that won a whopping eight Tony Awards in 2003 including Best Musical. One of the few musicals that truly succeeds at all levels with great music, dancing, and both a fun and inspiring story. It's a story set in Baltimore during the early 1960s and centered on Tracy Turnblad, a teenage girl who dreams of dancing on The Corny Collins Show, Baltimore's own television dance show. But she's meeting some resistance from a mom-and-daughter prima donna pair who poke fun at Tracy's weight. And she's getting even stiffer resistance when she wants to integrate the television show, eliminating the one-day-a-month "Negro Day" and making every day "Negro Day."

THE PRODUCTION:

Carlsbad Community Theatre welcomes us back to the Sixties with Hairspray under the direction of Eric Hellmers and aided by a number of dazzling period costumes by Janet Pitcher. This flashback is a little quicker than usual with the "junior" version of the show, cutting a few of the numbers including I Can Hear the Bells and Timeless to Me, but Eric Hellmers' team and the cast ensure that it's a short and sweet trip.

Tracy Turnblad (Maddie Aldecoa) and that cast kick it off with a great intro to Baltimore. Maddie has a strong voice and infectious personality as the center of the story. Her mother Edna is played by Michelle Travis who is delightful as she steps out of her comfort zone in Welcome to the Sixties. Jeff Wattner is amusing as Tracy's corny dad Wilbur, unfortunately not seen enough in the junior version. And Breanne Lehman is hilarious as Tracy's dorky and ditzzy best friend Penny Pingleton, a character she inhabits with marvelous personality and physical comedy.

Other highlights include Brad Nelson as teen idol Link Larkin who shines in the diverting Without Love with Tracy. Allie DeGour and Lydia Schmidt give nicely evil performances as the mother/daughter mean girls who help lead a great Mama, I'm a Big Girl Now number with Tracy, Edna, Penny, Prudy Pingleton (Hannah Gelbart) and later joined by other squabbling mother-daughter duets. Bryce Gallagher does a groovy Run and Tell That, charismatic Emme Roberts makes a splash as Little Inez, and Sierra Gonzalez leads a powerful I Know Where I've Been.

The cast as a whole creates a fun and energetic Nicest Kids in Town led emceed with flair by Corny Collins (Ryan Yates), welcomes us with style to the Sixties featuring The Dynamites (Miranda Colvin, Arianna Riel, and Grace Kellett), and brings it all home in a big and lively You Can't Stop the Beat.

El Camino High School

Little Shop of Horrors

El Camino High School theatre department always has the talent to pull off tremendous musicals and Little Shop of Horrors is no exception. Sharon Strong and co-Director Matthew Gherra directed a talented cast of high school actors.

Little Shop of Horrors is a musical comedy driven by a 50's score and some dark humor. The book and lyrics were written by Howard Ashman and the music by Alan Menken. The story is about Seymour, an employee of a Florist shop who discovers an exotic plant that thrives off the blood of humans. The plant, which is named Audrey II, is an overnight sensation that draws several customers to the once down and out shop on Skid Row. However, the price of this new-found success is high.

Jonah Duhe was perfect as the nerdy Seymour; he brought just enough nerd and charm that led you to care about his character. Duhe gave Seymour the depth and charm needed. He is especially “nervous” around his love interest, Audrey, who was played by the lovely Lily Boyd. Ms. Boyd is a great actress, and brought depth to her character. Her rendition of “Somewhere That's Green” was moving. You felt sorry for her anytime her abusive boyfriend Orin Scrivello (Alex Gonzales), the creepy and sadistic dentist showed up on the scene.

Bryan Sanchez was a fantastic Mushnik. He possessed the maturity level required for the role as well as the fatherly image to Seymour. One of my favorite, as well as one of the funniest numbers in the show was “Mushnik and Son.” On the other side of warmth was Alex Gonzales' Orin, who was immediately disliked due to his disparaging treatment of sweet Audrey. He certainly was funny but definitely not missed when Audrey II (Nako Te'i/ Oman Hernandez) had him for dinner. Which brings up the other extremely funny number in the show, “Now, It's Just the Gas.”

Leeza Cruz and Maggie Allen (Chiffon), Rozz Srabi and Marlin Colli (Crystal), and Moeka Quindoy and Kayana Herndon (Ronnette) moved the story along very well. Other supporting roles included Adam Jarrah as Mr. Chang and Mr. Bernstein, Amalia Neil as Ms. Luce, and Christopher Simmons as Skip Snip. A big kudos to the puppeteers of Audrey II, Claire Bires, Renny Murphy and Megan Woodson.

The sets were simple, costumes appropriate and the talent remarkable. Choreographer Hanz Enyeart did a fine job with the cast and their abilities.

I strongly suggest if you are ever in the neighborhood of Oceanside and desiring to see a great show, check to see if El Camino High School is putting a show on because you will not be disappointed.

New Village Arts

Lord of the Flies

April 11-May 3, 2015

THE SHOW:

When a plane crashes on an unpopulated island, the only survivors are a bunch of school boys being transported away from a war zone. Survival and rescue are the first priorities. They begin by electing Ralph as their leader who establishes parliamentary rules and assigns duties regarding keeping a fire burning and the search for food. Jack, an intimidating bully and a rival for leadership of the group, begins leading his supporters in successful hunts for native fauna. But the bloodlust grows beyond the hunting of wild pigs, the boys splinter into two sides, and they inexorably descend into the same madness that their warring elders followed back home. This stage adaptation by Nigel Williams is a disturbingly honest tribute to William Golding's classic book about the constant threat from the darkest side of human nature.

THE PRODUCTION:

New Village Arts in Carlsbad has assembled nearly a dozen extremely talented youth actors from around San Diego to give us a glimpse of this rarely done show. Jonah Gercke is Ralph – a very realistic portrayal of a good guy with innate leadership skills who cares about the welfare of friends and those who might be outsiders, but isn't immune to peer pressure and the desire to be liked by the popular kids. Ben Ellerbrock is his first friend nicknamed Piggy, a bespectacled, intelligent, socially awkward boy who recognizes the danger immediately and knows Ralph is his, and their, best chance to avoid destruction. Ben perfectly inhabits the angst, frustration, fears, and determination in his fight for law and order. Aaron Acosta beautifully captures the quiet, sensitive, and vulnerable soul of Simon.

On the other side, David Coffey leads the hunt as Jack with frightening authenticity, slowly transforming from your average schoolyard bully and snob to someone increasingly invigorated by the lack of real authority, eventually fully embracing his potential power over others. His right-hand man is the talented Tanner Vidos as Roger, a psychopath also slowly realizing that without authority figures there is no longer any self-serving reason to inhibit his violent impulses. Elsewhere, Anton Maroun and Jewels Weinberg provide a little comic relief as twins Sam and Eric, Josh Bradford is good as the dazed young Perceval, and through Gabe Krut's performance of Maurice we experience the strain of choosing to follow a leader out of fear and desire for self-preservation.

Director Justin Lang's production builds suspense throughout as we hurtle along its inescapable path. He's assembled a strong cast and creative team for this including the island setting by Kelly Kissinger, island sounds by Matt Lescault-Wood, fight choreography by George Ye, and costumes by Kate Bishop that morph contemporary school boys into disheveled castaways and boys trying as hard as possible to make themselves look like their idea of dangerous savages. It all helps set the powerfully portrayed final scene as the boys are suddenly forced to see what they've become, ending with Ralph's chilling final scream.

9 to 5: The Musical

THE SHOW:

Music and Lyrics by Dolly Parton, Book by Patricia Resnick, which opened on Broadway in 2009. Based on the hit 1980 film starring Lily Tomlin, Jane Fonda, and Dolly Parton.

The musical opens during a morning in 1979 as alarm clocks wake up groggy office workers who force themselves to get ready for another day at work while performing Dolly Parton's hit 9 to 5. They'll all end up Consolidated where they'll be working for the man. In this case, an unabashedly egotistical man named Franklin Hart, Jr. who spends most of his office hours sexually harassing his female coworkers. Violet Newstead (Lily Tomlin in the film) is the smart and savvy veteran office manager – a widow raising a teenage son who wants to break the glass ceiling. Judy Bernly (Jane Fonda) is the new hire who has never worked an office job in her life but desperately needs to after her cheating husband left her. And Doralee Rhodes (Dolly Parton) is the kind-hearted and sensitive southern belle ignored by her coworkers who think she's having an affair with Hart. Hart's treatment of them all leads to some daydreams of revenge that snowball into reality in this entertaining musical version of the classic comedy.

THE PRODUCTION:

Directors Mark Scott and Renee Kollar-Bachman team up to lead another terrific production at Rancho Buena Vista High School. Nice lighting touches by Curtis Mueller for the fantasy sections, good period outfits by MaryAnn Pinamonti and Viki Strand, and a great job by the professional band led by Lyndon Pugeda keep things looking and sounding good.

It's imperative to have three stars to lead it up on stage, and they've got a trio of powerhouses. Grace Marshall wraps up her remarkable high school career as Violet, slipping into the role of the intelligent, widowed single mom with natural ease, as well as an amusingly vengeful Snow White in her Potion Notion fantasy. She shines throughout with her versatile voice and characterizations, as well as her strong, charismatic lead in numbers like Around Here and One of the Boys. Mackenzie Scott nails her sweet Doralee persona as she fends off Hart like she's had to do it for years, has her feelings hurt by coworkers who inexplicably snub her overtures, and leads the cast in Backwoods Barbie and her humorously reining in of Hart with Cowgirl's Revenge. While as new girl Judy, Catherine Lynch slowly transforms from being overwhelmed, timid, and filled with self-doubt to a fantasy femme fatale in Dance of Death to a woman with surging confidence as she knocks out Get Out and Stay Out. And when you get all three of them leading the cast together in numbers like Change It and Shine Like the Sun, they blow out the theater with stunning vocals and power.

David Melendez is a hoot as the over-the-top sleazeball boss from hell you love to hate, especially in the revenge fantasies. Molly Baggett is his brownnosing assistant Roz who lets loose in her own hilarious daydreams with the boss in Heart to Hart. Jake Bradford is great as the nice guy younger coworker trying to convince Violet to go out. Garrett Lamoureux is Doralee's fun and supportive husband, Niko Wyskiel is Violet's equally supportive son, Dixon Janda is Judy's jerk ex-husband, and Kaylee Bender delivers a very memorable cameo as Hart's super sweet wife who tries not to be hurt by her husband and tries to be oblivious to his philandering. The cast as a whole keeps this show strong throughout with their dancing to Renee Kollar-Bachman's creative choreography as well as their singing and acting as a variety of coworkers each with good personalities, a variety of colorful characters in the revenge fantasies, and getting it all started as grumpy early risers (except for dance captain Katie Blessing as a happy morning person doing aerobics) preparing for their 9 to 5.

Mary Poppins
May 27- June 6, 2015

Mary Poppins is one of the most beloved musicals of our time and San Dieguito Academy mounted a remarkable production. Everyone in this musical was a standout and each actor clearly invested in telling the story honestly and with integrity.

The show opens with our Bert, played by a spirited Andrew Kenny, who is never without a smile and dynamic stage presence. In “Cherry Tree Lane (Part 1)” he introduces the audience to the Banks family, George (Dashiell Gregory), Winifred (Delaney Ryan), Jane (Rachel Dovsky), and Michael (Shea Fairbanks Galaudet).

Delaney Ryan truly brings substance to Winifred Banks and unlike the movie version Mrs Banks played by Glynis Johns, she shows us a vulnerable and sad side of her, who longs for her own career and a better relationship with her husband, Mr. Banks. Dahshiell Gregory portrays a stoic and often irritable Mr. Banks who seems to have very little time for the “pleasantries” of having a family.

There are many stars in this production such as Samantha Steinberg, who plays a terrific Mary Poppins and has a beautiful voice. She also possesses poise and a natural acting ability. The two characters who completely captured my heart were Jane and Michael Banks. Rachel Dovsky and Shea Fairbanks Galaudet are amazing. Yes, Michael is played by a girl and from the moment Ms. Galaudet is on stage you see all boy! Michael is a rascal and Ms Galaudet plays it well. Ms. Dovsky's Jane is quite the know-it-all yet still proves to be loveable. These two actors never crossed the line with their characters by being too mischievous. It was always just enough that you could forgive and fall in love with them as children. Both have wonderful voices and they blended perfectly. It is difficult to take your eyes off of actors this great.

Among others who deserve mention is Maggie Lombard as Mrs. Brill. Unfortunately, there were some minor mic issues yet she never let it phase her acting. Jewels Weinberg was our Robertson Ay and a very good one with great stage presence. Jessica Morilak was a perfect villainous nanny with a gorgeous Soprano voice. Lawreynce Cecio played Von Hussler quite well, and Thea Farber as the Bird Woman did a wonderful job in “Feed the Birds.”

San Dieguito Academy

All of the musical numbers were executed with tons of energy. My favorites included an animated “Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious,” with a dynamic Emily Templin as Mrs. Corry. “Practically Perfect,” with Mary Poppins' items being retrieved from her magical bag, mirrors, plants, a hat stand was delightful. I especially liked “Playing the Game,” and “Let's Go Fly a Kite,” but my all time favorite was “Step in Time.” The group tapped relentlessly and with so much vigor and synchronicity that I thought I was watching a professional cast.

The only downfall occurred when the individual seated in front of me decided to raise her cell phone to my eye level to take photos of the cast. I nearly missed an entire song. Perhaps in the future I will ask for a front row seat to avoid a potentially obstructed view. I say future because I will definitely be returning to see a future production of San Dieguito Academy.

Transitions were smooth, the sets were done well and the orchestra was perfect. This was an incredibly well directed show with a dynamic and group of young artists committed to telling the story. Typically in a production you may find one individual who may be caught not smiling or truly in character but every lead, supporting and ensemble actor gave 100%. Even the following day I could still hear tireless tapping and found myself humming the tunes of Mary Poppins.
