How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying

Climbing your way to the top without any regard for fingers, toes, or feelings for others is what How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying is all about. In this musical we watch J. Pierrepont Finch connive, cheat, and lie his way from window washer to corporate executive. In the beginning, you think, how can you end up liking a character like Finch?

How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying is a musical by Frank Loesser with a book by Abe Burrows, Jack Weinstock and Willie Gilbert. It is based on Shepherd Meade's bestselling book. It has won seven Tony Awards and spawned two revivals and a film since its original Broadway opening in 1961.

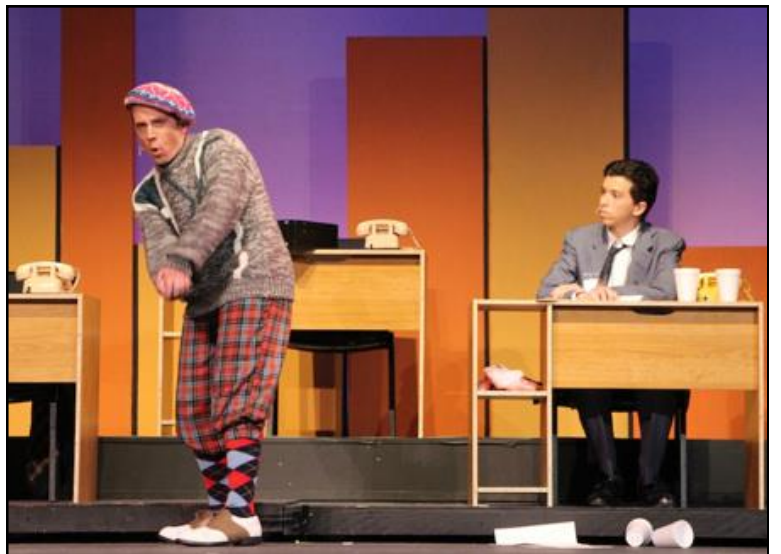

Maximilian DeLoach leads the cast in Carlsbad High School's version of How to Succeed as Finch. I truly love what gaped tooth Robert Morse does with this character in the film, however, I did enjoy DeLoach's version. He played it a little less on the "quirky" side and I liked his ease of movement on stage. His vocals in the title song, "The Company Way" and "Rosemary" were delivered effortlessly and he had a great leading man's quality to his tone. DeLoach brought believability and charm to Finch, and I found him very likeable, even when duping others to accomplish his career goals. His dance abilities are also good and the energy in "Brotherhood of Man" was fantastic. In fact, the whole group of men in that number gave a great performance, which leads to the mention of other great male actors in the production.

I am always amazed by some of the young artists in San Diego youth theatre and Evan Ridpath is no exception. Ridpath played World Wide Wicket Executive J.B. Biggley with maturity, great finesse, and depth. He was grounded and consistent and his duet with Finch in "Grand Old Ivy" was lively and fun. He showed sincerity with his love interest femme fatale, Hedy Larue (Emerson Diehl) in "Love From a Heart of Gold."

Finch's antithesis, Bud Frump, is colorfully played by Jonah Ibrahim. Ibrahim's gave so much character in "Coffee Break" and "Been a Long Day." In fact, he did such a great job at being spoiled and entitled that you find yourself rooting for Finch, regardless of all his sucking up, backstabbing and scheming. Others worth mentioning are Cameron Penn as Bratt, Carter Knight as Mr. Twimble, Sam Pines as Wally Womper, and Adam Gilmore as Gatch.

The young ladies in the show were not too shabby and held their own. Valerie Maybaum played a sweet and patient Rosemary Pilkington, who is smitten with Finch from the moment she meets him. Her vocals were pleasing to the ear especially in "Happy to Keep His Dinner Warm." Maybaum and DeLoach had tender moments in "Rosemary." Miss Maybaum was in great company with Alexa Harris' Smitty. Harris is stellar in her performance as Smitty, and "Been a Long Day" with Finch and Rosemary was one of the highlights of the evening. Miss Harris also has a natural grace and prowess about her on stage and she shined.

Another standout actress was Emerson Diehl who played our Hedy, Biggley's airhead mistress. Miss Diehl's performance was fantastic with her screechy high pitched voice and comedic timing. Karinya Ghiara was a super Miss Jones. For a high school student she played the mature role extremely well next to her peers.

Overall, this was a great show. The pacing was clean and crisp, the costumes fit the period and there were some very strong actors who graced the stage. By the end of the show I was definitely a fan of J. Pierrepont Finch and company.

The Little Mermaid

April 10-12, 2014

We all know the classic story of The Little Mermaid, written by Hans Christian Andersen, about a mermaid who longs to live on land. When she saves Prince Eric from a terrible storm at sea, she falls in love and trades her beautiful voice for a pair of human legs. Disney's The Little Mermaid, Jr. is a shorter version of the Broadway adaptation based on Disney's animated film with the music of Alan Menken, lyrics by Howard Ashman and Glenn Slater, and book by Doug Wright.

Director Monica Loebel-Ward is in her 10th year at the Coastal Academy as director and music teacher. She and longtime Assistant Director/Choreographer Ingrid Thomson have groomed their 4th through 8th grade performers into some wonderful young artists. It was a wonderful time spent under the sea with Coastal Academy's Disney's The Little Mermaid, Jr.

In this production our Ariel, Sebastian, Grimsby, and Ursula are double cast, as well as Flotsam and Jetsam. I found both Ariels enjoyable to watch. Ali Rohrbaug is the face of a Disney Princess and her Ariel was expressive in her interpretation of "Part of Your World." Shelby Sanborn played up the rebellious daughter of King Triton (Peter Batcheller). She was also very expressive, and her vocal intonation and tone were pleasant.

Newcomers to the stage are Peter Batcheller as King Triton and Devon Pedroza as Prince Eric. The ability of an 8th grader to play a paternal role with such dignity and poise for a first timer is truly impressive. And Mr. Pedroza (also in eight grade) has a natural confidence about him on stage and his Prince Eric was warm and showed genuine concern for Ariel.

The evil sea witch Ursula was portrayed by Grace Davis and Claire Andolina. Each actress brings her own personal strengths to the stage, and they are both fun to watch alongside their sidekicks, Flotsam and Jetsam (Zach James, Salima Gangani, Bradley Polancic, and Claudia Scott). Miss Davis looked as though she walked right out of the animated movie and Miss Andolina strutted the stage with confidence and ease. Both Ursulas gave a solid performance in "Poor Unfortunate Souls." Zach James and Bradley Polancic were great sidekicks to Grace Davis' Ursula. The two were a cross between punk rockers from the zombie apocalypse. Salima Gangani and Claudia Scott moved and sang harmoniously with Ursula, Claire Andolina.

The Little Mermaid, Jr. offers many parts for actors to shine. Taylor Rivas and Spencer Crosby played the testy and funny Sebastian. Miss Rivas sold the Jamaican accent and Mr. Crosby was charismatic in "Under the Sea." Ariel's trusted friend, Flounder, was played by Brooke Brierley, while Riley Troyer and John Parsons played our faithful Grimsby.

Of course, we must not forget the Mersisters: Geneva Lindsley (Allana), Maddi Stennett (Andrina), Cate Stennett (Atina), Kehaulani Lynch (Adella), Gabby Schanzenbach (Arita) and Kennedy Perry (Aquata). All were perfect for "Daughters of Triton." James Farner was an amusing Chef Luis and sang a fun, "Les Poissons," Nevaeh Imel portrayed a very animated Scuttle. One of my memorable moments of her is when her face contorted in pure wonder and disgust whenever

Ariel mentioned that Prince Eric was handsome. It always warranted a chuckle. Sierra Okamura (Gull 1), Cara Pelling (Gull 2), and Caleb Schanzenbach (Gull 3) were just as funny and spirited in "Human Stuff."

Margaret Lindsley and Jennifer Pelling's sumptuous costume designs were stunning and enhanced the show. The lighting and set design also added to the quality of the show. It is hard to believe that this was a middle school production performed by such young performers, and the overall production was simply marvelous.

Encore Youth Theatre

Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat— June 7-16, 2013

Aladdin, Jr.—October 4-12, 2013

Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat

Under the direction of Ms. Dana Carr, Encore Youth Theatre again fills the Moonlight stage with a nicely creative and visually attractive version of Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Joseph". Based on the story of Joseph and his "coat of many colors", this production was Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice's first collaboration to be performed publicly. It premiered in London in 1968 and went through numerous expansions and revisions throughout the '70s, before opening on Broadway in 1982.

Narrators Brooke Kesler, Catherine Lynch, and Alexandria Miller nicely carried the show with strong vocals including Brooke's rousing "Joseph's Coat", Alex's soulful rendition of "Poor Poor Joseph" and Catherine's refreshing "Potiphar". All three teamed together in an amazingly strong and highly charged "Go Go Go Joseph" that rounded off the first act on a high note.

Quinton Walker as Joseph is a confident performer with a solid voice. And there is enough tenderness in him to get the songs across, particularly in numbers like "Close Every Door," which requires a certain haunted quality.

Other notable performances include Anna Reyes (Issachar) whose "Benjamin Calypso" was absolutely infectious. The Pharaoh, played by Drew Bradford, was well cast in his role, and Drew does an Elvis take on the Pharaoh that had the audience in stitches. David Crespin amused all in his role as Potiphar, and Emily Majewski showed impressive talent as Potiphar's wife with great charisma and polished dance throughout the show. (Clearly a great choice as dance Captain.) Sawyer Henderson is charming as the "Baker," and Jeremy Mauritzen showed nice comedic timing in his role as the "Butler."

Joseph's brothers work joyously as a group (clearly having a great time), while those who step out for individual moments in the spotlight all nail the moment. Jake Bradford (Levi) and Anna Broberg (Angel) showed real talent and crisp vocals in "One More Angel" as did Jacob Kimbarrow (Asher) in "Canaan Days". There's no mistaking that each member of the Brother's ensemble were completely on top of their game.

Assisting the cast's impressive singing talent are an energetic Children's Ensemble, a Teen Ensemble with many outstanding voices, and a remarkable sixteen-piece pit orchestra aptly directed by Lyndon Puggeda that filled the Moonlight with an almost overwhelming crescendo.

With solid direction, an incredible orchestra, great costumes, a huge talented cast and the beautiful Moonlight stage as a canvas, Encore clearly showed how "Joseph" can be told again with a new energy.

Encore Youth Theatre

Aladdin Jr.

There was magic in the air along with a flying carpet, lots of swords, and some fine performances at the Avo Playhouse as Encore Youth Theatre enchanted audiences with the stage version of Disney's hit film.

Leading the way, the Narrators Tamara Alsaied, Allegra Herris, Madeline Nguyen and Paulina Nguyen worked great together and showed some very nice vocals in "Arabian Nights". Jake Bradford was both believable and endearing as Aladdin, with a fine singing voice and comfortable in the acting role, nicely complemented by Baylee Valentine as Princess Jasmine. Both were strong in her singing and acting performance and their duets were well blended in "A Whole New World".

The villainous ranking official Jafar (Austin Arena) and his sidekick Iago the parrot (Megan Burland) were both just the right amount of evil along with some great comedic timing and very funny in their duet "Why Me". Other strong performances included Blake Kerzie as the energetic and playful Magic Carpet, Allyce Calloway as the amusing and sassy Genie, Jason Ruiz as the all powerful Sultan, and Joseph Fusco as the comically confused Razoul.

Backing up the leads were an impressive ensemble of Guards and Townspeople. Musical Director Lyndon Pugged did a fine job with this group producing some crowd-pleasing favorites including "A Friend Like Me" and "Prince Ali".

Les Miserables

June 28-30, 2013

KTN delights again with their production of Victor Hugo's novel Les Miserables. Translated as "the Miserable Ones," is a narrative about a people's struggle against adversity in 19th century France. The story follows the struggles of ex-convict Jean Valjean and his experience of redemption. The play examines the nature of law, and expounds upon the history of France, politics, moral philosophy, justice, and religion. Les Miserables was originally adapted into a play by Trevor Nunn and John Caird.

Leading the way, Trevor Haumschilt (Jean Valjean) gives a fine performance and has an abundance of intensity in his vocals including the heartfelt "Bring Him Home". Matching that intensity was Dane Lawler as Valjean's relentless pursuer Inspector Javert, and showed nice vocals in "Stars".

Katie Westbrook showed an emotional and beautiful portrayal of Fantine and a lovely singing voice with a heartfelt rendition of "I Dreamed a Dream".

Lea LeBrun (Cosette) and Daniel Trent (Marius) provided romantic fervor from their love-at-first-sight encounter in the streets of Saint Michel to their reunion after the battle at the barricades and their final meeting with Valjean. Their beautifully sung duet, "A Heart Full of Love" was clearly a favorite with the audience. Nathan Getman (Thénardier) and Sarah Bedford (Madame Thénardier) were hilarious as the wretched and conniving innkeepers who sold the young Cosette to Valjean and later turned up leading a Paris street gang. Ciarra Stroud delivered a strong performance as their daughter Eponine, and her counterpart Gracie Trent (Young Eponine) was perfectly cast in her role.

Stirring performances were also turned in by Zachary Manlapid (Enjolras) as leader of the student uprising, Shelby Westbrook (Gavroche), the street-smart urchin who "runs" Saint Michel, and Maxine Sutton (Young Cosette), who delivered a beautifully sweet and sad "Castle On A Cloud."

The finale was huge, bringing together all those who had died, survived, battled, fought and wrestled with morality itself, and provided a memorable ending. But, for this reviewer at least, the peak of the show was the climactic "One Day More" done with an inspiring energy that was evident in all the cast. Perhaps one of the most impressive elements of this production was the consistent acting from the large ensemble. Director Lynne Broyles and Musical Director Claire Orona made this rather difficult-to-perform musical into a tight, well-rehearsed production.

North Coast Rep Theatre School

Les Misérables in Concert

I have seen many productions of Les Misérables, from professional to youth theatre, but I have rarely seen it in concert form. The Theatre School @ North Coast Rep did a great job with telling Victor Hugo's epic saga - concert style.

The cast was seated upon the stage and characters would come up to the mics to perform their song, so I appreciated it whenever an actor remained in character while seated. Although, it was distracting when some of the seated actors fidgeted too much or tried to make eye contact with other cast members during the performance.

Siobhan Sullivan Crews' cast of Les Misérables had some standout talent. It takes an actor who reads mature onstage, is an incredible actor, and brings a certain wisdom to the character. Oftentimes, youth directors have to focus on voice when casting Jean Valjean rather than the maturity level of the actor. Unfortunately, this places acting in a secondary position, which inevitably leads to a disconnect between the character and audience. I felt that Ben Read did well in this role both vocally and dramatically; he possesses some natural acting qualities and a suitable voice for Valjean. His renditions of "What Have I done?" and "Who Am I" were memorable, and "Bring Him Home" had some powerful moments. Mr. Read is not alone. Alexa Querin delivered a beautiful performance as the ill-fated Fantine. She conveyed her character's story honestly and flawlessly in, "I Dreamed A Dream."

Other standout performers were Jessica Morilak, Tyler Faison, Abby DeSpain, and Kaitlyn O'Leary. Morilak and Faison's performance as the Thenardiers was extremely comical and "Master of the House" was very entertaining. I could not find one moment where these two actors dropped character. Even when they were seated they stayed in character. I saw Tyler Faison once before in the same role and he has since perfected this character tenfold. Miss Morilak was the epitome as Madame Thenardier. She was mean and nasty and the right amount of lowbrow. Simply fabulous. Abby DeSpain is one to look out for as she matures. She is young but very capable of putting meaning to her verses. Her work as the young lad Gavroche in "Little People" was marvelous.

Jonathan Edzant played our Marius, Marisa Acosta was Cosette, and David Coffey played Enjolras. Carly Lynch and Sean Boyd (who played Thenardier on another evening) were part of the ensemble. It is important to mention them because of their obvious passion for performing. Both were always in character and were enjoyable to watch. Each had some solo singing and performed from within and gave 100%. They seemed to grasp the meaning of "acting."

Eponine was played by Kaitlyn O'Leary, and while young for this role she is very capable as her vocals defy her age. Her vocalization of "On My Own" was near perfection and moving.

The ensemble was great and "One Day More" and "Do You Hear the People Sing" were remarkable and robust.

Patio Playhouse

The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee May 2-18, 2014

The 25th Annual Putnam County Spelling Bee has won several awards and has been performed in several theaters across the country. The musical is about six students who all vie to be the winner of the Bee, along with four additional spellers who are pulled from the audience. Throughout the show we learn more about each contestant as they are called up to spell a word. With all of the comedic moments the show still offers depth, emotion, and a message. Spelling Bee's music and lyrics are by William Finn, the book by Rachel Sheinkin, and conceived by Rebecca Feldman with additional material by Jay Reiss.

Patio Playhouse is a small black box theatre in the heart of downtown Escondido. I personally love black box theatre and its intimate setting. It makes you feel like you are right there in the moment with the actors. In larger theatres if you are too far away you sometimes are not able to see an actor's expression, and for me as a reviewer and theatre lover, it is the best part of watching a show. Give me a small black box theatre, simple sets, terrific actors, and I'm a happy camper!

Patio Playhouse's Spelling Bee definitely had some terrific talent. Director Janet Frankel's casting choices and direction in this show were brilliant. Most, if not all of the actors were in their character's skin. The judges in the show are Rona Lisa Peretti (Lia Peros), a former winner of the "Bee," Douglas Panch (Chris Wollman), a Vice Principal announcer, and Mitch "Michelle" Mahoney (Jennifer Purviance), a convict doing some community service. Lia Peros' Rona Lisa Peretti introduces the spellers and the four audience members who are invited to join the other six spellers. I loved Ms. Peros' animated performance as Rona Lisa Peretti, and her vocals were nothing less than fantastic throughout the show. Her maturity and ability to connect lyrically was wonderful in "My Favorite Moment of the Bee." Chris Wollman's portrayal as the announcer who falls for Rona Lisa Peretti was fantastic. He was really good at coming up with oddball and funny sentences for the chosen spelling words. Jennifer Purviance's has a great belt voice, and "The Prayer of the Comfort Counselor" was fantastic. She was mostly in charge of giving the losing spellers a small apple juice box when leaving the competition.

What I do appreciate about Spelling Bee is the magnificent storytelling, done with such simplicity and hilarity, and this cast delivered it flawlessly. These young actors are top notch and really impressed me. Jessica Frenkel portrayed a somewhat insecure and adorably shy Olive Ostrovsky. Olive is an unfortunate victim of absentee parents, and with sweet and innocent expression she asks one of the audience members to save a seat for her Dad. She is the least confident of the spellers and I found myself rooting for her. Ms. Frenkel is an incredible actress and it was evident that she had tears in her eyes when she sang, "I Love You."

While Olive Ostrovsky is shy and timid, our William Barfee is not. The announcer is consistently mispronouncing his last name and he must tell him each time that it's "BAR-FAY" not "BAR-FEE." Hunter Saling played an excellent Barfee: a quirky, nerdy dude with taped-up glasses and hair parted down the middle. He has a special spelling weapon, his "magic foot," and anytime he spelled a word correctly, he would say cockily, "I know." Saling is a natural actor with great vocals ("My Magic Foot").

Our over-achieving, bug-eyed, neurotic Logainne Schwartzandgrubenierre was played by Ellie Barrett. Ms. Barrett's character is the daughter of two stage Dads and she is worried about disappointing them. She developed some idiosyncrasies for her character; such as straightening her blazer each time she was called and tapping her pinned up braided ponytails once she spelled a word correctly. She was very consistent with her lisp and her reactions to other characters and situations were priceless.

Next up is red-headed Ian Laughbaum who played the whimsical and optimistic Leaf Coneybear. Coneybear actually placed third at his school but circumstances has given him the chance to compete. Mr. Laughbaum's Coneybear was costumed like a character from "That 70's Show," topped with a child-sized Superman cape. Each time he spelled a word he would immediately go into a comatose state. Truly loved his rendition of "I'm Not That Smart." Laughbaum also doubled as Dan Dad, one of Logainne's dads.

Another genius geek is Boy Scout-clad Chip Tolentino, who is a former Bee winner, played by Jayson Soloman (Mr. Soloman also plays Logainne's other overachieving dad, Carl Dad). He has great stage presence and many of his moments on stage were funny, but the funniest for me was in "My Unfortunate Erection," where he is overcome with feelings for "Marigold" who happens to be an audience member. There were moments Soloman nearly broke character, much like a funny skit from Saturday Night Live, where the actors find it difficult to keep a straight face. Overall, his performance was strong.

As the show progresses, the message becomes clear - that winning isn't the most important thing. Deep down, it really isn't for Rebecca Penner's Marcy Park who is "not all business" and makes her statement in, "I Speak Six Languages." This character is happy to throw the competition. Miss Penner holds her own on the stage and I imagine we will be seeing more of her in many more productions to come.

The company numbers were excellent, but my top two would have to be "Pandemonium" and "Spelling Montage." I also really enjoyed the Goodbyes (the company would sing anytime a speller left the bee). All in all, a marvelous production with lots of laughs, some light tears (both joyful and sad), and a lot of personality. One of my favorites this season!

Little Women: The Musical

February 7-15, 2014

THE SHOW

Book by Alan Knee, Music by Jason Howland, Lyrics by Mindi Dickstien, based on the novel by Louisa May Alcott

Based on Louisa May Alcott's own family experiences (and novel), LITTLE WOMEN, follows the adventures of Jo, Meg, Beth and Amy March as they grow up in Civil War America. The beloved story of the March sisters is timeless and deals with issues as relevant today as when they were written. This wonderful narrative has been brought to life as an exhilarating musical filled with glorious music, dancing and heart. LITTLE WOMEN embodies the complete theatrical experience, guaranteeing a night filled with laughter, tears, and a lifting of the spirit. The powerful score soars with the sounds of personal discovery, heartache and hope — the sounds of a young America finding its voice.

THE PRODUCTION

Jackie Foster starred in the role of the passionate and adventurous Jo March. Miss Foster completely embodied Jo's spirit with amazing depth which is seldom seen in young performers. Her top notch vocals which served to support her stellar consistency of character means she gave a Broadway-caliber performance which can only be described as "Astonishing". Rebecca Dhillon, who portrayed the courageous and loving Marmee, made playing an adult alongside one's peers look effortless. Her beautiful and touching rendition of "Days of Plenty" brought tears to this reviewer's eyes. The three March sisters, performed by Kaela Marriott (Meg), Charity Monroe (Beth) and Lirenza Gillette (Amy) were brought to life showing their exuberance and innocence. Miss Marriott did a fantastic job of portraying Meg's youth and subsequent maturation throughout the show. Her rendition of "More Than I Am" alongside Trevor Haumschilt (Mr. Brooks) was a truly lovely duet in which both actors left a memorable mark. Miss Monroe brought a sweet, calming depiction of Beth's quiet, inner strength which serves the family when it is forced to continue without their beloved sister. Her light and lovely vocals were very pleasant with a particularly pleasing performance of "Some Things Are Meant To Be". Miss Gillette gave an outstanding performance as Amy, the youngest March sister, easily capturing her annoying and headstrong spirit. Her vocals throughout the show were absolutely splendid, especially during the duet “The Most Amazing Thing”. All of the sisters had engaging voices that blended well in the rousing choruses of “Our Finest Dreams” and “Five Forever” along with Chris Ruddy who played the role of Laurie, the friendly neighbor across the way. Mr. Ruddy did a fine job finding Laurie’s humor and clearly demonstrating his joy at being considered one of the family.

Poway High School

Noah Sims, as Professor Bhaer, gave a wonderful and mature-sounding vocal performance with particularly spectacular moments in “How I Am”. Austin Thatcher did a great job of showing Mr. Laurence’s growth from cranky old neighbor to caring and supportive friend. Margaux Payton, in the role of Aunt March, found the perfect blend of brilliant bossiness and kindness for the character. She also did an impressive job of handling Aunt March’s little dog, using the poise and concentration needed when dealing with animal performers. Emily Nunn (Mrs. Kirk) and Allison Leete (Clarissa), while portraying small roles, gave outstanding and notable performances. The remainder of the cast filled out the stage nicely with some of them doing a great job during their modest, yet shining moments.

The sets, designed by Michael Hoffman, while minimal and somewhat abstract did a serviceable job of grounding the show in the several different locations throughout the show. It is worth noting that the Poway High School Drama Department is remarkably fortunate to have access to the lovely and technically advanced Poway Performing Arts Center. Impressively directed by Katie Wilson and superbly musically directed by Nancy Gray, the show left the audience, stunned, impressed and wishing there was more.

Rancho Buena Vista High School

The Addams Family

Rancho Buena Vista scores another hit with the high school world premiere of “The Addams Family”. This show takes us to the later years of this iconic ghoulish family, where Wednesday falls in love with Lucas, a normal Midwest fellow. Hijinks ensue when the in-laws get together to discuss the marriage. The show cleverly integrates an ensemble of dead ghostly Addams Ancestors. And other than Cousin It, all of our favorite characters are there: Uncle Fester with his illuminating mouth light bulb; Lurch, the growling major-domo; Thing, the scampering Hand; Grandmama (whose mother is she?); Wednesday the sullen sadist; Pugsley the torture loving scamp; and of course Gomez the lover and his lovely wife Morticia.

Director Mark Scott was simply masterful with his vision and pacing of this new show. His use of the ghost ensemble with fabulous choreography from Renee Kollar-Bachman, was masterful. Corey Carpenter as the Bride was a particular standout amongst the white-clad ghouls!

Uncle Fester (Hayden Royster) and Gomez (Wyatt Smith) kind of shared the M/C role of moving the story along. Both were superb! Royster’s hilariously goofy comedic interpretation was second only to Smith’s suave king of innuendo performance. Mackenzie Scott as Morticia was a good complement to Smith, but Catherine Lynch’s Wednesday stole the show. Her singing, acting and dancing were triple-threat captivating. Normally, I bristle when a girl has to play a boy, but Kaylee Bender captured me with her portrayal of Pugsley. My biggest laughs came every time that Pugsley screamed when being tortured, while simultaneously exclaiming joy! Andrew Dorward as Lurch was tall and perfectly guttural for his role, but then he astonished us with slick dance moves and operatic areas. Bravo! Shannon Morrissey was just what we would have wanted out of Grandmama, and Teddy Blessing was perfectly awkward as Mal. But, how did she do it? With all of these out-of-world wacky characters, Grace Marshall was probably my favorite performer of the show. She was hilarious as Alice!!! It was not until a few hours later that I remembered Grace from a show that I directed many years ago. Grace, you have come so far! I only wish that I could claim that something that you learned in Bye Bye Birdie made you the fabulous performer that you are today!

On the technical side, Mary Ann Pinamonti’s and Viki Strand’s costumes were literally out of this world. Lyndon Pugged’s Musical Direction turned these youngster’s into a professional harmonic singing troupe. And big kudos to the crystal clear sound team (Ceja and Fernandez).

Thoroughly Modern Millie

March 21-29, 2014

It is 1922 and Kansas-born Millie Dillmount has arrived in the Big Apple where she plans to marry her boss, but instead falls for the fast-talking Jimmy Smith who doesn't have a dime, or does he? Meanwhile, the owner of the Hotel Priscilla, where Millie is a resident, is drugging young women and selling them to the Far East. What ensues is lots of slapstick comedy, a love triangle, and big ensemble tap numbers. Lyrics by Dick Scanlan, music by Jeanine Tesori and book by Richard Morris and Dick Scanlan.

In the opening of Santa Fe Christian School's Thoroughly Modern Millie, our leading lady is center stage of a New York City skyline. Madelina Pratt commands your attention with a gleam in her eye as she sings, "Not for the Life of Me." Miss Pratt embodies a great chest voice. She also brings spunk and a fun personality in her characterization of Millie; Pratt possesses great comedic timing and was mesmerizing to watch. There is onstage chemistry with Jimmy Smith (Garret Solberg). Mr. Solberg is natural in his acting and very humorous when telling Millie to go back to Kansas.

The demure and beautiful Miss Dorothy Brown is played by Sophia Anderson, who is just thrilled to be poor ("How the Other Half Lives"). Miss Anderson plays a refined Miss Dorothy with her curled blonde locks and pretty Soprano voice.

Ching Ho (Craig Buchanan) and Bun Foo (Blain Weeks) are great as Mrs. Meers' sidekicks, played by the talented and funny Madison Ferraro who delivered a solid "They Don't Know." Mr. Trevor Graydon (Issac Randel) was enjoyable to watch as the wealthy bachelor that Millie plans to ensnare. When Mr. Graydon falls for Miss Dorothy it becomes a hilarious display of affection in, "I'm Falling in Love with Someone."

While the opening was eye candy for this performer with the sharp, staccato movement, so was the Speakeasy scene, "The Nutty Cracker Suite." Amy Stine's choreography was crisp, clean movement true to the 1920's era. The ensemble was terrific in delivering vitality to Ms. Stine's creation and Lindsay Wickenhiser's (the Pearl Lady) technique shined in "The Nutty Cracker Suite."

Savannah Reed-Plouffe played an elegant, mature, and sultry Muzzy van Hossmere. Her solo "Only in New York," began with her in a single spotlight and she delivered a stunning performance, both vocally and theatrically. It was one of my favorite moments in this production.

Santa Fe Christian Schools

Millie's friends; Ruth, Gloria, Rita, Alice, and Ethel Peas (Meredith Anne Olson, Faith Reynolds, Briana Askew, Brittany Mim, Tori Hemphill) performed very well together and added their own spark to many scenes.

Under the music direction of Rhonda Fleming, musical numbers such as the quartet, "I'm Falling in Love with Someone," had great harmony. Although, I found the tempo of "What do I need with Love" on the slower side for my taste.

Alyse Stultz's costuming is perfection and pleasing to the eye showing hues of beige, tans, and off whites in the number "Thoroughly Modern Millie."

Director Marie Wolfe should be proud of her cast and production team of "Millie." The sets were simple, the costumes were marvelous, and the show's transitions were nearly flawless. Without a doubt, Santa Fe Christian's Thoroughly Modern Millie left an indelible impression.

Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory

THE SHOW:

Lyrics and Music by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley, adapted for the stage by Leslie Bricusse and Timothy Allen McDonald, and based on the book "Charlie and The Chocolate Factory" by Roald Dahl.

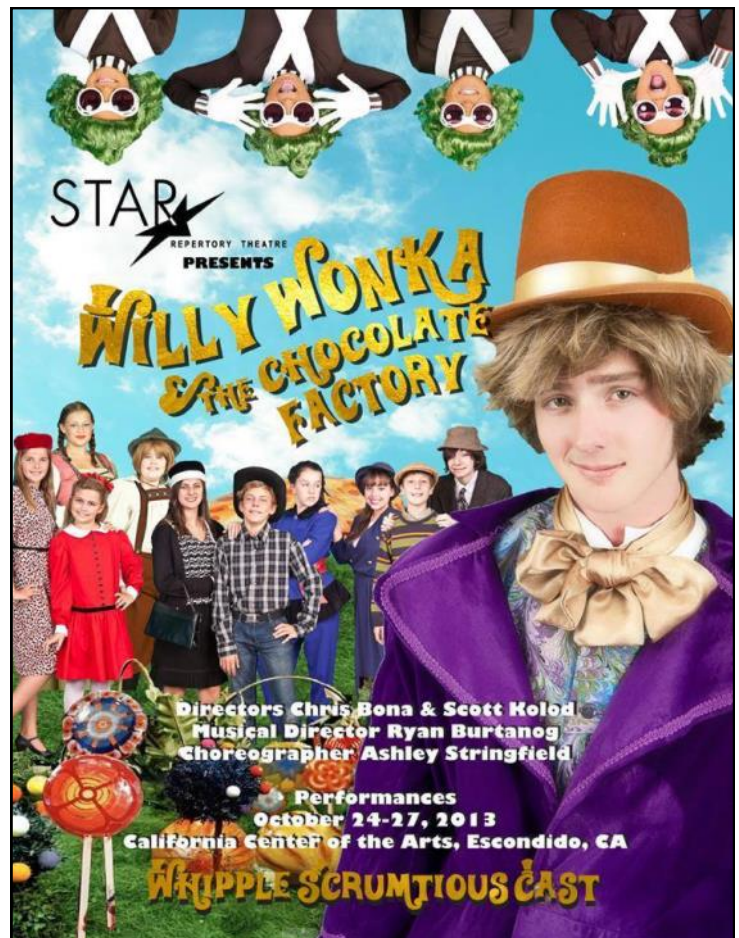

Without the singular imagination and storytelling of Roald Dahl, we'd never know about the Oompa Loompas, Whangdoodles, or Vermicious Knids. Nowadays everyone's heard of a snozzberry. And without the music makers and dreamers of the dreams like Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley, there wouldn't be the classic musical film adaptation of Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory starring Gene Wilder as the mysterious candyman whose factory has captivated children for more than forty years. The stage production skips the film's everlasting gobstopper corporate espionage subplot and a few classic lines, but it includes some good new tunes and all the old tunes like Pure Imagination and The Candyman. Not to mention all Roald Dahl's unforgettable characters and the magic of Wonka's chocolate factory still kindling the imagination of children of all ages.

THE PRODUCTION:

STAR Repertory Theatre always adds creativity and clever ways to give their young performers more opportunities to shine and learn on stage, and directors Chris Bona and Scott Kolod's production at the California Center of the Arts in Escondido begins with a pre-show featuring the show's reporter Phoebe conducting television interviews (video camera connected to a projector, thereby televising the stage interviews). The show is triple-cast, and in this "Whipple-Scrumptious" cast it's nine-year-old Elianna Vazquez interviewing young members of the audience, introducing many to their first time on stage, Elianna asking questions and doing a bit of improv with replies and follow-up questions, never knowing quite what to expect. When Elianna asked one interviewee what she wanted to be when she grew up, the very young girl answered hopefully, "I want to be Hello Kitty."

The Bucket family delivers great performances featuring Mr. Bucket and Mrs. Bucket (Lexie Machado) along with Charlie's humorous grandparents (Jonathan Garis, Madison Smits, Skyler Shortley, and Brodi Treadway) who play off each other extremely well. Anastasia Raymond brings terrific charisma and vocals to the Candyman. The young Oompa Loompas shine with their big finale morality lesson on television overdosing, and Ofelia Slugworth (Lillian Broschart) and the cast kick it all off with The Golden Age of Chocolate. They do it all amongst some cool and clever sets for the factory that at times includes some of the cast as set pieces including kids costumed as M&Ms, candy canes, and gumball machines in that place of Pure Imagination – The Chocolate Room.
